"FREE DOIN'S."

NO REGRETS GO.

AFTER twenty-four years of continuous publication THE BOURBON NEWS, on to-morrow, Wednesday, February 1, 1905, enters upon its twenty-fifth year.

THE BOURBON NEWS was established in Millersburg on February 1, 1881, and moved to Paris in March, 1882. It was founded by Mr. Bruce Champ, who was the father of the present editor and proprietor, Swift Champ.

The paper was edited by the senior Mr. Champ until his death, in 1892, and from the very beginning took rank with the leading country papers of Kentucky. He was noted for his bright sparkling wit and fearless espousal of all public questions, at all times taking the side of the great common people. After his death the paper passed into the hands of his eldest son, the late Walter Champ, and his nephew, Bruce Miller. In 1900, at the death of Walter Champ, the present management took control.

From the first edition of the paper THE NEWS has never missed coming out on day of publication and on time, overcoming all obstacles that have often overtaken it.

THE BOURBON NEWS was started on a capital of $18. Beginning with an old Washington Hand Press and a few cases of type. The present editor then a little "devil" in a gingham apron, fell into a keg of ink, and from that day to this, has never been able to wash the ink from his hands.

From this small beginning THE NEWS has grown and flourished until it now has a printing plant second to no country newspaper in Kentucky. In fact, we have an order out now for an up-to-date 6-column quarto Potter Cylinder Press, one of the best that is made, which will be installed in February. Besides this, we have two job presses, large paper cutter, folding machine, and all the latest faces of newspaper and job type. In all, we have about six hundred fonts of type in the office.

It can be seen that the people have appreciated our efforts in trying to give them a good newspaper twice a week and first-class job work. They have been liberal with us and we want to assure them that their patronage has been, and is now, sincerely appreciated. We thank them, and will endeavor in the future to lend them our best efforts to please and give them their money's worth.

We have not been able to accumulate a fortune, but have from year to year added to our plant in order to give satisfaction to the public, and this will still be our aim.

It seems almost impossible to run a newspaper without incurring the ill-will of some. We have, no doubt, made enemies by criticising and giving our opinion on some things, but we feel no personal enmity against any one. A newspaper is expected to form public opinion and we think that when an editor does not give the public an insight to all he finds out whereby it is of public interest and for the public good, he falls short of a duty he owes to his patrons and to the public.

On to-morrow (Wednesday) from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., we are going to hold a buffet reception at our office, and cordially extend the above invitation to our patrons and friends. If there is anyone who thinks we have in any way injured them, we ask forgiveness and give them an especial invitation to call around—we will greet them with a "smile," bury the hatchet and give them the glad hand. Life is too short to stay mad at one another.

MASSING TROOPS.

Russians Have Placed 65,000 Men on the Japanese Left And Are Bombarding.

AN ATTACK ALL ALONG THE LINE.

There is More Artillery on Both Sides Than in Any Former Battle in History.

In the Direction of the Left Wing a Japanese Detachment Were Victors at Chenchephao and Occupied Two Villages.

Tokio, Jan. 30.—The Russians are massing 65,000 troops on the Japanese left and bombarding the left flank and center. Small forces of Russians are attacking all along the line.

Manchurian headquarters of the Japanese army report that the Russians occasionally bombarded the right and center armies, following up the bombardment with attacks, which the Japanese immediately repulsed. In the direction of the left wing a Japanese detachment were victors at Chenchephao and occupied the Lieutiako and Lichiaowopeng, the Russians retreating north and west.

The Japanese occupied with infantry positions southeast of Heikouta, and are now assaulting the main position.

Russian Strength About Eight Corps.

Another detachment dislodged a regiment of infantry, a brigade of cavalry and 12 guns occupying Haerphao, five miles south of Heikouta.

The Russian strength opposing the Japanese left flank is roughly estimated at eight corps, consisting of the 14th and 15th infantry divisions, the second and fifth brigades of European rifles, the ninth infantry division of the tenth corps, part of the 61st infantry division, part of the First Siberian corps and the first and ninth brigades of rifles.

Szefamotai, 60 Verts South of West of Mukden, Jan. 28, via Pekin, Jan. 30.—A battle commenced at daylight January 25. The right flank reinforced by troops from the east began a movement against the Japanese left. One corps, leaving Szefamotai at midnight, January 24, marched about seven miles southwest and at daylight attacked. The infantry, backed up by artillery, drove the Japanese from two villages at midday after a sharp fight and continued to make progress, the rest of the right flank becoming engaged.

Russian Artillery Fire Was Heavy. The Russian artillery fire was heavy but the Japanese remained almost silent. The captured villages presented a warlike picture with Japanese and Russian dead lying side by side in the streets. The Russian infantry kept under the cover of the walls and houses to protect themselves from the Japanese fire from adjoining villages. The country is flat and thickly populated and the villages are large and rich in foodstuffs.

On January 26 there was a heavy fire along the right flank front and an advance was made. The wind at the Russians' backs drove the snow into the faces of the Japanese and it was very difficult to see any distance. One Siberian rifle regiment suffered somewhat heavy losses.

January 27 the fighting continued on the right flank, but it does not seem to be developing along the center or eastern flanks. Probably the cold weather prevents a further continuance of the battle. There is more artillery on both sides than in any former battle of history.

IN A STEAM BATH ROOM.

Two Young Men Were Scalded To Death in New York.

New York, Jan. 30.—Shut in the steam room of a Russian bath house in Hester street, two young men were scalded to death before their plight was realized by the attendants. Evidence that both had made frenzied efforts to attract attention was afforded by cuts and bruises on both the bodies and by blood stained scratches in the plaster of the walls against which they had groped in their efforts to find an outlet. The victims were Abraham Pastern and Peter Roos, both tailors living in Norfolk street. Abraham Stern, the proprietor of the bath house, and five of the attendants were arrested and held pending an investigation.

Protests Against Russian Cruelties.

Rome, Jan. 30.—Many meetings were held in the principal towns of Italy to protest against the alleged Russian cruelties. The more notable of these meetings were at Naples, Pisa, Ancona, Messina, Genoa and Brindisi.

Sympathizers With Revolutionists.

New York, Jan. 30.—Sympathizers with the Russian revolutionary movement thronged the Academy of Music and applauded addresses delivered by John Dewitt Warner, H. Montague Donner, Ernest H. Cross and others.

Russian Aristocracy Denounced.

Boston, Jan. 30.—Fifteen hundred people at Faneuil hall applauded sentiments denouncing the Russian aristocracy and promising financial aid to the revolution.

Cheered the Red Flag.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 30.—Two hundred men and women, members of socialist societies, rose to their feet and cheered a red flag at a mass meeting held here.

ITEMS OF HOUSEHOLD LORE

Little Bits of Domestic Wisdom That May Aid the Careful House-keeper.

Strong, hot vinegar will remove paint and mortar from glass.

Rub grease on the seams of new tinware, keep in a warm place for a day, and the article will not rust in the seams.

Starch and iron wide lamp wicks and wicks for oil stoves. They will not then cause trouble in fitting them into the burners.

Do not wash the wooden breadplate in hot water and it will not turn black. Wash with soap and warm water, and rinse in clean, cold water.

Always wash off the top of the milk bottle before removing the little paper cap, since it is by the top that the delivery man always lifts the bottle.

Use a few drops of carbolic acid on the damp cloth with which you wipe off the mouthpiece of the telephone. The reason is obvious in this "germ age."

Washing window curtains in winter can be easily accomplished by rubbing them in dry corn meal, and then allowing them to hang a little while in a brisk wind.

Have a little bag hung on the inside of the sewing machine frame at the left hand to receive clippings that so quickly accumulate when working at the machine.

Space in a crowded closet can be saved by using the patent hangers made for men's trousers, the little metal strip holding a dress skirt smoothly across the front breadth.

Keep a bottle of linseed oil and lime-water, together with a roll of absorbent cotton and pieces and strips of old linen for bandages, all in a convenient place to use in case of burns.

Take an old piece of carpet or a new piece of burlap 45 by 27 inches. Bind or hem the ends. Sew on strong leather handles. Use to bring kindlings and small wood in.

A cluster of galyx leaves makes a pretty decoration for the dining-table. They can be bought at a florist's, and will keep their fresh, brilliant reds, greens and yellows all winter, if kept in fresh water.

Gather up all the small broken bits of white soap in the bathroom and kitchen, pound to make fine, melt together, and pour into a small mold or old teacup, that has been wet with cold water.

Use a silver knife to peel apples, and the hands will not be blackened as when a steel knife is used. The acid of the fruit (acetic acid) acts on the iron in the latter case, but does not affect the silver.

THINK WELL OF YOURSELF.

The Girl Who Lacks Self-Confidence May Be Hiding Attractive Qualities.

Most of us have some friend among our acquaintance who, as the children have it, "thinks too much of herself." A beautiful knowledge that she is right in everything is her leading characteristic, and because of this self-confidence she is anything but a nice girl to know.

Yet, as a general rule, perhaps there are far too many girls who err the other way. That humility which we are at times implored to cultivate has with them become too much of a habit, says Woman's Life.

The girl who lacks self-confidence may have very pleasing conversational gifts which others never have an opportunity to enjoy, because she dare not make use of her power. Many a girl, too, is afraid to take the initiative in any question, though her judgment is invariably right. How many of us have friends who spend their lives in some inferior position because they think so little of themselves, and they dare not aspire to a higher post, while one is continually meeting the girl who makes terrible mistakes simply because she is afraid to follow the teaching of her own mind.

Of course it is difficult to hit that happy dividing line which separates every virtue from its corresponding vice. At the same time in a good many families the "sitting-out" process which is requisitioned in order to destroy conceit too often destroys also the self-confidence which does so much toward success in the world.

SCANT FOR A GENTLEMAN.

Two Dollars for a Month's Living Was Not Up to the Borrower's Needs.

Somewhere in town is a man of good family and excellent education who has simply gone to the dogs. He has reached the dime stage of the borrowing habit, says the Washington Star. One of his friends, Bob by name, grew tired some time ago of his importunities.

"See here, Joe," said he, "if you'll promise to stop asking me for a dime every time you see me, I'll give you two dollars a month. I can't stand being bothered so much. I'll tell the cashier, and every first of the month you come in and he'll give you the two dollars."

It was the last of the month then, and Joe promised. Prompt on the first of the month he called for his money. About a fortnight later he came in again to borrow a dime. Bob lost patience.

"Why, you promised to quit bothering me," he said. "I can't have you taking up so much of my time. Didn't we make a bargain, and didn't you agree to stick to it?"

"I did promise," said Joe, "I made that bargain in good faith, and I meant to carry it out, but I just want to ask you one thing, Bob. Don't you think two dollars a month is darn little for a gentleman to live on?"

Chilblains.

Put into a cup of vinegar a generous supply of salt and heat until the salt partly dissolves. Apply to the frost-bitten parts as hot as it can be borne. Repeat two or three times until the swelling disappears and relief is experienced. A few drops of carbolic acid in the water in which the feet are bathed will also take the sting from chilblains, though at first the burning sensation may be increased. Do not use the carbolic too strong.—Washington Star.

Secret of Living.

If we can only come back to nature together every year, and consider the flowers and the birds, and confess our faults and our mistakes under the silent stars and hear the river murmuring in absolution, we shall die young, even though we live long; and we shall have a treasure of memories which will be like the twin flower, a double blossom on a single stem, and carry with us into the unseen world something which will make it worth while to be immortal.—Henry Van Dyke.

Literary Mexico.

Mexico is credited with being at the head of the Latin-American countries in the matter of letters. Besides possessing the oldest organs of Spanish-American journalism, it is said to have in active existence the first library established in America, which is now at least 300 years old. In Chili, Argentina and Peru there are papers that have been published for 50 years and more. One is the El Comercio of Lima, which has had a career of 60 years of uninterrupted daily issue.

New Electric Furnace.

A new electric furnace method has been invented by M. A. Nodon. The electro-negative metal is fused and used as the cathode in an electric furnace with a non-attackable substance as anode and an electrolyte of a fusible, only slightly volatile, halogen compound of the more electro-positive metal. When a current is passed through, the ionization effected produces a combination of the metals, with liberation of the halogen.—Scientific American.

CONSTITUTION.

ARTICLE 1.—NAME.

ARTICLE 2.—OBJECTS.

First—To insure, so far as possible, a permanent condition of peace, prosperity and steady employment to the people of Battle Creek.

Second—To energetically assist in maintaining law and order at all times and under all conditions.

Third—To protect its members in their rights to manage their property and to dispose of their labor in a legal, lawful manner without restraint or interference.

Fourth—To insure and permanently maintain fair, just treatment, one with another in all the relations of life.

Fifth—To preserve the existing right of any capable person to obtain employment and sell his labor, without being obliged to join any particular church, secret society, labor union or any other organization, and to support all such persons in their efforts to resist compulsory methods on the part of any organized body whatsoever.

Sixth—To promote among employers a spirit of fairness, friendship and desire for the best interests of their employees, and to promote among workmen the spirit of industry, thrift, faithfulness to their employers and good citizenship.

Seventh—To so amalgamate the public sentiment of all of the best citizens of Battle Creek that a guarantee can be given to the world of a continuance of peaceful conditions, and that under such guarantee and protection manufacturers and capitalists can be induced to locate their business enterprises in Battle Creek.

Then follows articles relating to membership, officers, duties, etc., etc.

This constitution has been signed by the great majority of representative citizens, including our workpeople.

A number of manufacturers from other cities, where they have been suffering all sorts of indignities, inconvenience and losses from the general hell of labor union strikes, picketing, assaults and other interference, proposed to move, providing they could be guaranteed protection.

The subject grew in importance until it has reached a place where absolute protection can be guaranteed by the citizens of Battle Creek on the following broad and evenly balanced terms which guarantees to the workman and to the manufacturer fairness, justice, steady work and regularity of output.

The new-coming manufacturer agrees to maintain the standard rate of wage paid elsewhere for like service, under similar conditions, the rate to be determined from time to time from well authenticated reports from competing cities. The tabulated wage reports issued by the Government Department of Commerce and Labor can also be used to show the standard rate, and it is expected later on that this government bureau will furnish weekly reports of the labor market from different centers, so that the workman when he is ready to sell his labor and the employer when he is ready to buy, may each have reliable information as to the market or ruling price.

The new-coming manufacturer also agrees to maintain the sanitary and hygienic laws and to refrain from any lockouts to reduce wages below the standard; reserving to himself the right to discharge any employee for cause.

The Citizens' Association on its part agrees to furnish, in such numbers as it is possible to obtain, first-class workmen who will contract to sell their labor at the standard price for such period as may be fixed upon, agreeing not to strike, picket, assault other workmen, destroy property, or do any of the criminal acts common to labor unionism. Each workman reserving to himself the right to quit work for cause, and the Citizens' Association further pledges its members to use its associated power to enforce the contracts between employer and employee and to act en masse to uphold the law at all times.

The new industries locating in Battle Creek will not start under any sort of labor union domination whatsoever, but will make individual contracts with each employee, those contracts being fair and equitable and guaranteed on both sides.

Thus from the abuses of labor unions and their insane efforts to ruin everyone who does not "obey" has evolved this plan which replaces the old conditions of injustice, lockouts, strikes, violence, loss of money and property, and general industrial warfare; and inaugurates an era of perfect balance and fairness between employer and employee, a steady continuance of industry and consequent prosperity. The entire community pledged by public sentiment and private act to restore to each man his ancient right to "peace, freedom and the pursuit of happiness."

Other cities will be driven to protect their work people, merchants and citizens as well as their industries from the blight of strikes, violence and the losses brought on by labor unionism run amuck, by adopting the "Battle Creek plan" but this city offers industrial peace now with cheap coal and good water, first-class railroad facilities and the best grade of fair, capable and peaceable mechanics known.

Details given upon inquiry of the "Secy. of the Citizens' Ass'n." Identification. The public should remember that there are a few Labor Unions conducted on peaceful lines, and in proportion as they are worthy they have won esteem, for we, as a people, are strongly in sympathy with any right act that has for its purpose better conditions for wage workers. But we do not forget that we seek the good of all and not those alone who belong to some organization, whereas even the law-abiding unions show undeniable evidences of tyranny and oppression when they are strong enough, while many of the unions harbor and encourage criminals in their efforts to force a yoke of slavery upon the American people. As a public speaker lately said: "The arrogance of the English King that roused the fiery eloquence of Otis, that inspired the immortal declaration of Jefferson, that left Warren dying on the slopes of Bunker Hill was not more outrageous than the conditions that a closed shop would force upon the community. These men burst into rebellion when the king did but touch their pockets." Imagine if you can their indignant protest had he sought to prohibit or restrict their occupation or determine the conditions under which they should earn their livelihood, and to assault, beat and murder them, blow up their houses and poison their food if they did not submit.

The public should also remember that good true American citizens can be found in the unions and that they deprecate the criminal acts of their fellow members, but they are often in bad company.

Salt only hurts sore spots. So, the honest, lawabiding union man is not hurt when the criminals are denounced, but when you hear a union man "holer" because the facts are made public, he has branded himself as either one of the lawbreakers or a sympathizer, and therefore with the mind of the lawbreaker, and likely to become one when opportunity offers. That is one reason employers decline to hire such men.

A short time ago inquiry came from the union forces to know if Mr. Post would "keep still" if they would call off the boycott on Postum and Grape-Nuts.

This is the reply: "The labor trust has seen fit to try to ruin our business because we would not join its criminal conspiracy. We are plain American citizens and differ from the labor union plan in that we do not force people to strike, picket, boycott, assault, blow up property or commit murder. We do not pay thugs $20 to break in the ribs of any man who tries to support his family nor $30 for an eye knocked out.

We try to show our plain, honest regard for sturdy and independent workmen by paying the highest wages in the state. We have a steady, unvarying respect for the law-abiding peaceable union man and a most earnest desire to see him gain power enough to purge the unions of their criminal practices that have brought down upon them the righteous denunciation of a long-suffering and outraged public, but we will not fawn, truckle, bend the knee, wear the hated collar of white slavery, the union label, nor prostitute our American citizenship under 'orders' of any labor trust.

You offer to remove the restriction on our business and with 'union' gold choke the throat and still the voice raised in stern denunciation of the despotism which tramples beneath an iron shod heel, the freedom of our brothers.

You would gag us with a silver bar and muffle the appeal to the American people to harken to the cries for bread of the little children whose faithful fathers were beaten to death while striving to earn food for them.

Your boycott may perhaps succeed in throwing our people out of work and driving us from business, but you cannot wrench from us that priceless jewel our fathers fought for and which every true son guards with his life. Therefore, speaking for our work people and ourselves the infamous offer is declined."

AMUSEMENTS.

"OLD SI STEBBINS."

All rural plays seem to be popular with our theatre-goers and "Old Si Stebbins," which will be seen at the Paris Grand, Wednesday, February 1, will no doubt meet with their approval.
The play deals with life in New England State (in the country), and the quaint characters in the cast are true to life. While the express purpose of the comedy is to create laughter, still it has a coherent plot that is well carried out and contains many incidents and situations that are funny in the extreme. Dan Darleigh as Si Stebbins is excellent, his impersonations being free from vulgarity and objectionable features, and refined in every detail. The supporting company is large and competent, and the performance is greatly enlivened by the specialties given by Dan Darleigh, Henri LaVardo, Louise DeWitt, Hazel Darleigh, James Geers and Pauline Soules. The superb band and also entitled to notice for their excellent work.

"UNDER SOUTHERN SKIES."

One of the most successful plays to be presented in this city this season is "Under Southern Skies" which will appear at the Paris Grand on Friday February 3d. "Under Southern Skies" is one of the largest and most expensive dramatic companies now travelling, as the company numbers twenty-seven people, twenty-three of whom appear in speaking parts, and every piece of scenery used in the production is carried with the company.
"Under Southern Skies" is now in its fourth season having had two phe-nomenally successful seasons in the East.

LOTTIE
BLAIR
PARKER

"Under Southern Skies" is from the pen of Dottie Blair Parker who also wrote "Way Down East," and it is as true and interesting a picture of the South as that now famous play is of New England.

The story of the play is a very strong and interesting one, and is one that is peculiarly Southern. Its characters are distinct types of Southern people, many of them being highly diverting. A Hallow'en celebration and pumpkin dance are among the most attractive features of the performance.

Why Not Let Clark Decide It?

The Clark County Democrat is anxious to have the matter settled as to who will be the candidate for Senator from this district. This being Clark county's time to name the candidate, it has three well-known and able gentlemen in the field for the place—Messrs. Ecton, Thomson and Swift. All of them have expressed themselves as ready for the matter to be settled. Why can't they get together and leave the matter to the voters of Clark county, and we feel sure that the one that wins in his home county will be satisfactory to the Democrats of the district. Clark is a good old Democratic county and it would make no mistake in selecting its favorite of these three gentlemen. So he is a good Democrat is all we ask.

Neidringhaus Can See This Point.

Thomas K. Neidringhaus' experiences in getting a senatorial toga in Missouri, recall "Private" John Allen's story.
After Mr. Cleveland's inauguration "Private" John asked for the appointment of a friend to the postmastership at Tupelo.
Mr. Cleveland put him off time and again, and finally "Private"
John said: "Mr. President, down in my district an old fellow died and left his estate to his son, making the proviso that the boy should demonstrate his fitness to care for the property before it was turned over to him. I was made trustee. The boy was a wild blade, and I hesitated about giving him control of the property. After he had called on me several times and I had put him off, he called one day, and after talking the matter over he looked at me sadly and said: 'John, when I think of the trouble I am having in gettin' hold of this estate, blamed if I ain't sometimes sorry that pa died.'"

Is Hargis The Supreme Law?

Chief of Detectives Marshall, of Lexington, who went to Jackson to secure the arrest of the Breathitt county men indicted by the Fayette grand jury for complicity in the murder of James Cockrill, returned to Lexington alone, the accused refusing to accompany him, on the ground that they were under the jurisdiction of the Breathitt county authorities, having been arrested January 25 on the same charge. Court records show also that the men were arrested early in December on the charge of complicity in the Cockrill murder, and that they were released on bonds of $2,000 each to answer to the Breathitt county grand jury on February 13.

Of course, Judge Hargis and his indicted associates do not propose to leave Breathitt county, at the mandate of a mere court of law, to stand trial in any other part of the world for murder. In Breathitt county Judge Hargis says he does as he damn pleases, and the history of Breathitt county contains much that is corroborative of this view of the matter. It is natural, therefore, that if he must stand trial for murder His Honor and His Honor's associates in the indictments should chase to stand it in Breathitt county. It may be, however, that, Breathitt county not being the whole of Kentucky, there are administrators of justice in the State with whom Judge Hargis' pleasure is not the supreme law.

The people of Kentucky will await with much interest the developments in this case, for it will determine whether or not Hargis is the Supreme Law in this State.

Entitled to the Chromo.

Mrs. Chadwick has been given a great deal of notoriety because of her manipulations of the money market, but a Fayette county man is entitled to the chromo for extensive operations, for a stack of straw, the produce of thirty acres, is about the biggest thing to be stolen we have yet heard of. Mr. S. R. Buchanan, a Fayette farmer, is the loser of a straw stack of prodigious dimensions. The stack was loaded and carted away and when Mr. Buchanan went to that portion of his farm Sunday where the straw was stacked, he discovered that the straw had been removed entirely.
No clew to the thief.

OCULIST.—Dr. H. C. Bowen, the oculist, will be at A. J. Winters &
Co.'s on February 9th, 1905.

WANTED.

No. 5 Broadway.

Three Great Speeches.

Three great speeches were made at the Lexington Opera House last night.
Judge Ben B. Lindsay, of Denver, on the subject of "Juvenile Courts;" A.
F. Byrd, of Winchester, on "Lawlessness in Kentucky," and Col. John Allen on "Juvenile Crime in Kentucky." The Kentucky Legislature attended in a body.

Kentucky Boy Wins Medal.

The gold medal awarded annually to the member of the graduating class at Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., who proves most efficient in target practice with guns of big calibre, has this year been won by mid-shipman Edward G. Hargis, of Winchester, Ky. Of interest in connection with this award, is the fact that the young midshipman is a member of the Hargis family of Breathitt county fame. He has, however, won distinction along somewhat different lines than many of his completed his course at the Academy, and graduated yesterday.

'A Novel Damage Suit.

A novel damage suit has just been filed in the Greenup county Circuit Court. Col. Millard F. Wood, Republican candidate for county jailer and a former United States storekeeper and gauger, asks 10,000 damages against Dr. W. M. Fenner, a manufacturer of patent medicines at Fredonia, N. Y. Col. Wood alleges that he has lost his hearing from taking medicine from the agency and that he came very near losing his life.
The suit is attracting much attention, and results will be watched with interest.

Cutting Afray.

In a difficulty at the tobacco barn of J. K. Todd, near North Middletown, Saturday, Charlie Arnold cut James Pence with a large pocket knife, severing the main artery of Pence's right arm. The wounded man came near bleeding to death before a physician arrived.

Twenty Minutes Late.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Booth came near being suffocated by smoke on Saturday night. Upon retiring they pulled back their fender and covered with ashes a rather big fire. About two o'clock they awoke and the room was dense with smoke and it was with some difficulty that Mr. Booth succeeded in extinguishing a fire in the floor in front of the grate which had burned through the rafters. He was assisted by the Swearingen brothers who occupy a portion of the same house. The house was again discovered to be on fire about an hour afterwards and they telephoned to the fire department. In twenty minutes, by the watch, after they had found and extinguished the second blaze a member of the fire department, with a lantern in his hand, put in his appearance. He had walked over from the engine house and brought his lantern along to find the fire, but nothing to extinguish it with.

Damage by the fire will amount to about $50, and but for the heroic efforts of those occupying the residence the house would have burned to the ground. It was a narrow escape from suffocation for Mr. and Mrs. Booth.

Real Estate Transfers.

Remington, will end his thirty-third year of continuous service in the printing offices of Paris and begins his thirty-fourth, and in his paper of Saturday invites all friends and enemies to call on Saturday next at his office, as he intends to keep open house. Mr. Remington started into the business with the old Western Citizen as "devil" and has climbed the ladder round by round until he is now the editor and proprietor of the most excellent Paris Democrat. Long may you and your paper live, Brother Remington, and continue to prosper and grow in usefulness. We will be up Saturday and expect you and your force down to-morrow to break bread with us.

"UNDER SOUTHERN SKIES" will be here Friday, February 3d. Prices 25c, 50c, 75c and $1.00.

Made Their Usual Rounds.

Burglars made their usual rounds in this city on Saturday night, but happened to be scared off before securing any booty. They bored eight or ten holes around the lock on Lavin & Connell's back door, on corner of Main and Eighth streets, but their saw would not cut the piece of iron that is spliced in the door. So they probably gave up the job or was scared away.

The residence of Mr. Alex. Rice, on Mt. Airy Avenue, was again visited Saturday night. They succeeded in cutting out a place in the lattice work on a back porch when Mrs. Rice made her appearance and fired four or five shots. Mr. Rice was over in town at the time, it being early in the night.

Did you say you had no fire insurance? Well go and see W. O. Hinton. He has the right kind. (1f)

SINGIN'.

When the dawn is stealing softly o'er the prairies wide and lone,
And the silver dew lies heavy where the paths are overgrown,
When the birds that throng the thickets wake to chant their matin songs,
As I walk out in the freshness I forget that life has wrongs,
And I find myself a singin', in a sort of humble way,
Gentle tunes that somehow mingle with the pure and holy day,
And I go about my farm in and I scarcely have a care,
Or an envy, for the rich folks in the whole world anywhere.

It's the same way in my sorrow—I go down across the field—
Lo, I see the blessed Master in the promise of fine yield, Lush winds soothe my angry murmurs, sunshine lights my gloomy heart,
And the protests, black and bitter, from my bosom soon depart,
In the far blue sky above me dark-winged swallows dip and soar,
Then I feel the day's deep gladness as it wraps me more and more,
And without thought of sinning my soul breaks into a song,
And my work grows somehow sacred as I slowly plod along.

Why, at eventide in autumn, when the loaded wain comes near,
With the red and golden apples so prophetic of good cheer,
Standin' at the barn door waitin', so's to help the boys unload, Growin' old and sometimes dreamin' of my heavenly abode,
Find myself a hummin' snatches of the hymns we used to sing,
Way back yonder when dear mother told us of our Lord and King;
And it makes me feel so joyous I grow young and strong again,
Till I work just like I used to when I had no ache or pain.

Ah, this world's the place for singin', you may say just what you please Song makes every trouble lighter, soothes and rests you by degrees,
And with love for all your neighbors and forgiveness for your foes,
You can feel the breeze that ever from the plain celestial flows,
Days pass by like drippin' honey, and the nights like coolin' brooks,
And you know that God is lovin' by the way His green world looks,
And then liftin' up your spirit you can breathe a heartfelt prayer,
That the toilers in His vineyards may be happy everywhere.

—Charles W. Stevenson, in Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

BY CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY
Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

CHAPTER XXXI.—CONTINUED.

As the morning wore on communication was had with Le Formidable, and from her news of Grafton's safety secured. Hawke himself carried the news to the devoted woman, who revived so much on receipt of the tidings that she insisted upon going aboard the captured ship at once. By the admiral's direction his own barge, which had been uninjured in the battle, was called away and placed at her disposal. Hatfield accompanied her.

"Tell him from me," said Hawke, as he bade her good-bye at the gangway, "that he did magnificently. I marked his course, I saw his fighting, England shall hear of it. Tell him, too, not to worry over the loss of his ship. It was a thing that might have happened to any one. I am thankful we got off so easily." He stopped and looked gravely yet kindly at her, laying his hand on her head—she seemed to remind him of his own daughter. "Tell him, also, that the best share of the victory and the greatest prize has fallen to him since he has you. They tell me he is desperately wounded and unconscious, but you will revive him and bring him to life if anything can. Don't give way. He needs you now. I don't wonder he fought as he did! 'Twas not for England only, but for his wife as well—and such a wife! You must bring him back to the Royal George when you can, and come back yourself if you stay with him—"

"I shall never leave him again, monsieur," she murmured. "Whom have I now but him? I thank you; you have been good to me. I shall not forget it."

She seized his hand, and before he could withdraw it, much to his embarrassment she carried it to her lips and was gone.

CHAPTER XXXII.

FROM DEATH UNTO LIFE.

SINCE early morning the surgeons from the English ships had been working with the wounded on Le Formidable, and details of seamen had been working over the ship herself as well, so that, while she was still a picture of ruin and devastation, she was in a very much better condition than she had been. Most of the severely wounded had died in the interim, and their bodies had been cast overboard with as much reverence as the demands of the living and their pressing necessities admitted, which was not much. Those who yet remained alive were fast becoming amenable to the treatment, but the ship itself was a sufficiently ghastly place, in spite of all that had been done for her and for her crew, to have appalled the stoutest heart.

Philip's wife, however, saw nothing of this. There was nothing before her heart but her husband and his welfare. She knew nothing, saw nothing, thought of nothing but him. She had long since passed beyond the normal capacity of humanity to experience suffering—save in so far as he was concerned. Nothing else made any appeal to her deadened sensibilities. She had still strength to get to his side; after that—

She sat in the boat, as it made its way toward Le Formidable, with her eyes closed, her lips murmuring prayers. And though her eyes were opened on the ship, it made little difference to her. She stood on the wreck as one blind. Hatfield helped her tenderly over the side, and with a word of explanation to the prize-master took her immediately below to the great cabin.

They had given Grafton the room that had belonged to the brave Admiral du Verger, now peacefully sleeping beneath the waves on the scene of his heroic defence.

As they approached the door Anne could hear her husband's voice. He was alive, then, thank God! Hatfield pushed open the door and she entered. At the head of the berth on a low stool sat a grim old sailor, his face buried in his hands. He lifted his head as they entered, rose to his feet, and stared at her.

"Who be you, ma'm?" he asked.

"I am his wife," she answered, pushing past him toward the berth.

There was her husband. He was white, haggard, and broken. He looked utterly exhausted—dying. The fever which had possessed him had reduced him to the last extremity. His eyes were closed; he was muttering to himself. She bent her head to listen. How the scene in the old house in Quebec came back to her as she saw him lying helpless before her thus again!

"My ship!" he murmured. "My ship! She strikes! Ha! She's going down! Le These! My God, my wife—my wife—have mercy on me! My ship—my wife—pity, O God, my wife—my wife—"

"He's been sayin' them words for three days. 'Tis his wife an' the ship all the time," whispered the old sailor to Hatfield.

Anne stared at Grafton in strained silence. He did not know her. Would he ever do so? She thought, if he did not recover consciousness, if he did not cease that unwearied murmur of ship and wife, she would die there before him. She was petrified, appalled, shocked by the cumulative events of the week—tried beyond endurance. She stared longer, growing whiter as she did. Was she dying, too? Well, what mattered it? They would go together. Hatfield saw her sway, and not with the motion of the ship. He sprang to her side and caught her by the shoulder. Old Slocum took her by the hands.

"Ma'am," he said in his rude way, tears filling his eyes, "I knowed him w'en he was a baby. I sailed with his father. Pull yourself together an' speak to him. If you don't call him back again he's gone. The doctor says he can't do nuthin' more for him. Speak to him, fer God's sake, ma'am!"

Anne roused herself with a last desperate effort—summoned the vestiges of her resolution once more, and, as she thought, for the last time—stepped nearer to Grafton, laid her hand upon his brow, and bent her lips low toward him.

"Philip!" she whispered. "Philip, O Philip! My husband!"

He heard the unfamiliar sound. His babbling ceased. He opened his eyes and lay strangely still, looking at her.

"Little France," he whispered, "is it thou?"

"I, indeed, Philip!" cried the girl. "My wife!" he murmured.

"Yes, yes, now and forever! O Philip, Philip, I called to God out of the deep and He heard me! We will never be parted."

"You have called me back to life," he murmured.

She laid her head upon his breast, as she had done many times before in Canada. He closed his eyes. Had he fainted? But, no, she felt the pressure of his hand. He would recover now. It needed no other skill than that supplied by her loving heart to assure her of that. He had grown strangely calm in her presence. Her own strength came back to her before his weakness. She seemed to lift him up to life and love again. The silence in the cabin was broken only by the sound of the waves rushing along the side, the creaking and groaning of the timbers from the uneasy pitching of the ship.

Hatfield beckoned old Slocum, and the two men slipped noiselessly out.

"I guess he don't want me no more, sir," said the old sailor, sadly, as he stepped out of the cabin, "an' I took keer on him w'en he was a baby."

"And I lost my ship, darling," whispered Philip at last, all the sorrow of a sailor and a captain in his voice.

"Yes, but the admiral said you had done nobly and you were not to mind. He would see."

"Ah, he is a kindly man!" "He was kind to me, too. And I am grateful."

"And I, too." "Philip, do you know that I am alone now but for you?" continued the girl, sadly. "Grandfather, friends, country, all seem to have gone down in that terrible ship."

"'Twas not my ship that sunk her, dear," protested her husband. "God's hand dealt the blow. He saved you. He brought us together again. I shall be all things to you by His help. I promise Him, I promise you."

"And I believe you and trust you. I always believed you—and trusted you, even as a child, my Philip."

"And you will do so still?" "To the very end."

"That picture, Anne, darling," whispered Grafton at last, "that you gave me, 'twas broken by the blow that struck me down."

"Let it be!" cried the girl. "You have me now, is not that enough?" "And that slipper," he murmured, "that I took from your room in the tower—"

"Did you take it?" she cried, faintly smiling through her tears. "I missed it and wondered."

"'Tis gone, too," he said, "lost with the Torbay."

"Philip," she said, suddenly, "that other locket? Ah, you wear it still!" she added, lifting the chain with her hand.

In spite of herself her eyes looked the desire she did not express.

"There can be no secret between us now, sweet Anne," said Grafton. "Open it."

She drew back. His willingness was all she wished.

"Nay, I trust you in all. I have you. You are mine. No pictured woman may rise to claim you now."

"None ever will, dear," he answered. "But open it. I desire it. The dead general would wish it, too, could he but know you."

With eager hands she drew the little golden locket from its weather-stained leather case. She pressed the spring and opened it. The miniature of a beautiful young woman looked up at her. As she gazed at it a moment her eyes filled with tears. She could not help but be very jealous.

"She is very beautiful," she murmured, pitifully, looking from the portrait at her husband.

"Is she?" he said, faintly. "I never saw her."

"Never saw her!" "No, she was the betrothed of Gen. Wolfe. He gave me the locket the night before the battle of Quebec, and bade me place it in her hands when I returned to England, with all the love of his heart, and he told me to tell no one; but now you—well, we will take it to her together."

"Yes, yes—poor maiden! Ah, Philip, Sir Philip, how well you English know how to love a woman!"

"A man would be a poor fellow, indeed, Anne," he answered, "whom you could not teach to do that."

L'ENVOI.

FAREWELL:

NEARLY two years have fled away. It is a new scene in a new land. Under a grove of mighty trees, the forest primeval, indeed, on the brow of a hill, a gray old manor-house stands upon a grassy lawn stretching down to the shining waters of the broad Potomac. On the edge of the bluff, looking far over the river, is a little pleasure-house. It is late spring in the Old Dominion.

Philip and Anne Grafton for some time past have been established in the ancestral home of the family from which her mother sprang, which had descended to her shortly before. Though he had given up active service in the English navy, out of deference to his wife's feelings, who would not see him war against her countrymen, and who could not bear to think of him on that sea which had taken her grandfather and father as well, Grafton had retired with the sanction and approval of the king. His beautiful wife and her story had won the kind heart of queer little George II., and, while loath to lose so good an officer, he had at last said "yes" to all her pleadings for her husband. She had suffered enough and she was entitled to consideration.

From a tall masthead, erected on the sloping lawn, every day flutters a small blue flag, which is especially under the care of a certain ancient mariner of aspect curious and language quaint, who rolls along the walks and drives of the Virginia plantation as if he were still on the heaving deck of a ship. He answers to the name of Jabez Slocum, and is full of strange tales of distant lands and teeming seas. The children of the vicinity love him.

Philip's neighbors, in common with this old man, call him "Admiral Grafton." He is, in fact, a rear admiral of the blue, and the flag is that of his rank.

In the little summer-house there are two women. The difference between them is as marked, thinks Philip, as he observes them, himself unseen, from the porch of the house above, as when he first saw them in the old Chateau de Josselin in Brittany in France. There is but one doll between them now. It is not Toto, nor any of the demoiselles de Paris. This one has blue eyes like his father and mother, and the midnight hair of Anne has been lightened into a curly brown that speaks of Philip. Josette, who had been brought from France after the battle, kneels at her mistress's feet in adoration. From where Grafton stands he can see the downy head of his young son nestling against the fair white bosom of his mother. Young Philip de Rohan Grafton is hungry—but he will not be so long!

The two women break into the words of a familiar song. The man watches and listens. There is a step behind him. He turns and finds himself face to face with old Jean-Renaud.

"They sing yonder. Do you hear?" asked Grafton.

"Yes, monsieur," answered the old man smiling.

"Do you know what it is they sing?" Philip knows it well, he has heard it often; but still he asks the question, thinking the while of the morning he first heard it from the children at the foot of the tower when he asked Jean-Renaud about it long ago.

"Yes, Monsieur l'Amiral. 'Tis a Breton cradle-song with which the mothers put their babies to sleep."

The two men look and listen. The two women sing on. The baby sleeps. There is peace in the land.

[THE END.]

DEFEAT BUT NOT DISHONOR

Comes Often to Those Who Are Accustomed to Getting the Worst of It.

There is an eastern proverb to the effect that some people "beckon misfortune with both hands." It is equally true that many people have a lion's share of misfortune because they choose rather to suffer than inflict it. The New York Tribune gives a bit of philosophy from the lips of "Cap'n Joe," an old man who was rehearsing the news for the benefit of a summer boarder.

"You remember Noel Adams," said he. "Well, he had trouble with his partner about their schooner. Noel he got the worst of it."

"Jim Dobson has been trying to make his wife take up spiritualism. Didn't succeed very well. He got the worst of it in the end."

"Sam Beckett—you know him that lived with his brother-in-law in that frame house near the p'int—had a fuss about selling the property. Sam got the worst of it."

"All our friends seem to me unfortunate," said the visitor.

"Yep," agreed "Cap'n Joe." "But there ain't any change in the town. The same kind of folks is always getting the worst of it."

"What kind is that?" "The kind that's willing to take the worst of it."

ELBERT HUBBARD'S DOG.

The School Teacher Turned It Out Although It Was Named for Him.

Elbert Hubbard was born in Bloomington, Ill., and a Bloomington man said of him the other day:

"Hubbard and I went to school together when we were little chaps. It was a private school, a kind of kindergarten, and the teacher allowed us a good many liberties. Hubbard had a little puppy dog, and one of the liberties allowed to him was the privilege of bringing in the dog and keeping it at his feet during the session."

"This went on for a week or more. The puppy was quiet at first, but, as it got accustomed to the school, it began to take liberties, to be free, to caper about and bark."

"One morning it disturbed the whole room. It broke up the session altogether. Therefore the teacher said: 'Elbert, take that dog out, and never bring it in here any more.'

"Hubbard, nearly heartbroken, lifted the puppy up in his arms and went slowly down the aisle. He held its head against his cheek, and, as he departed, looking back reproachfully at the teacher, he said: 'And it's named after you.'"

Grass for the Queen.

At a children's party at Buckingham palace the other day a little incident occurred which furnished Queen Alexandra, who is very fond of children, with considerable amusement. One of the small people present, a three-year-old son of Lady Lurgan, had a passion for soldiers, and was showing his appreciation for the scarlet-coated military bandmen who were playing in the garden by picking daisies and presenting them. Presently the queen chanced to pass by, and graciously asked the small boy to give her a daisy. The youngster looked her majesty over, and compared her quiet gown with the gay uniforms he admired, then firmly replied: "No, Grass for you." And handed the queen a tiny handful of grass. The queen went off laughing at the little boy, who was honest enough to show that he preferred bandmen in red coats to royalty.—N. Y. Times.

He Needed It.

"Amazing are the questions," said Gen. H. C. King, of New York, "that are showered on the unhappy attendants of public museums. In London, one afternoon, I was standing near a museum guardian who wore a military uniform, with a helmet from which a chin strap hung."

"A youth approached the man and said: 'Would you mind telling me what that strap under your chin is for?'

"That," the attendant answered wearily, 'is to rest my jaw when I get tired answering questions.'—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Funston on Valor.

Gen. Funston, at a dinner party, complimented the valor of the Japanese. "Their valor," he said, "is not like that of a certain captain of the past. This captain was about to lead his company into battle. He drew his sword and said, shouting to his men, 'you have a tough struggle before you. Fight like heroes! your ammunition is gone; then run like antelopes. I'm a little lame, so I'll start now.'—Cincinnati Enquirer.

STOCK AND CROP.

—W. H. Mappin claims Tuesday, February 28, for his sale.

—James Dodge shipped four high class trotters to New York, Saturday.

—Jones & Florence, of near North Middletown, sold their 7,000-lb. crop of tobacco at 9 cents straight.

—Clark & Shropshire, of this city, sold to a West Virginia party, Friday, a fancy high school horse for $500.

—Joe Frakes bought of Isaac C. Vanmeter, of Clark, 39 head of cattle, average weight 1,425 pounds, at $4.50.

—Wm. M. Jones, of North Middletown, sold 79 head of 1,400-lb. cattle to W. H. Whaley, of this city, for $1.50 per cwt.

—Mrs. Owen, of Simpson county, had a bronze gobbler on exhibition at the Louisville poultry show which weighs forty-five and a half pounds.

—Chas. B. Stewart has purchased for the American Tobacco Co., in the past ten days, 88,000 pounds of tobacco from farmers near Paris at from 10 to 13 cents.

—At North Middletown, Wat M. Gay sold 100 barrels of corn to Green & Mason, at $2 delivered; also sold to Chas. Meng 500 shocks of corn at $2.15 per barrel, with place to feed it.

—H. M. Peters writing from the state of Washington to the Falmouth Pendletonian tells of pumpkins weighing from 80 to 100 pounds, turnips "three feet round" and other things in proportion. One farmer received a check for $45,364.30 for his crop of 60,000 bushels of wheat grown on 3,400 acres, which indicates the productivity of the soil and the large scale of farming operations in that comparatively new opened up region.

—Discussing the question of the cost of making each 100 pounds of meat on a steer, an exchange remarks that it was shown at one of the Chicago fat stock shows that it cost $4.03 for 100 pounds of gain with steers up to 12 months, $7.98 between 12 and 24 months, and $12.64 between 24 and 36 months. Other statistics show a wide range in the feed requirements, and it is concluded that in general about 1,000 pounds of grain will be required for 100 pounds of gain with well fattened steers on the average, besides 500 pounds of coarse food in the shape of hay, clover, etc.

BUGGY BLANKETS AND ROBES.—I have a nice lot of buggy blankets and fur robes on hand, which I will sell at reduced prices for cash.

CURES CATARRHAL DEAFNESS.

One Week's Use of Hyomei Did More Than Six Month's Treatment By Specialists.

In the treatment of deafness which is often a result of catarrh Hyomei acts almost immediately upon the inflamed membrane and the hearing begins to return at once. A few days treatment will bring relief, and in three or four weeks, according to the severity of the case, a cure will be accomplished.

Miss Meeks, of Mattewan, N. Y., says: "Hyomei is truly wonderful. I have used it but a short time and see a great change in my condition. My hearing is improving rapidly, and I had no idea I would improve so rapidly in so short a time. My breath which was so offensive to myself and others, has lost its bad odor entirely. I have spent a great deal of money with catarrh specialists and can truly say that six months of their treatment did not equal one month of Hyomei."

Clarke & Co. are selling Hyomei upon the unusual plan of agreeing to return the money if the medicine does not cure.

A complete outfit costs only $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler will last a lifetime, and there is enough Hyomei for several weeks' treatment. Additional bottles of Hyomei can be procured for 50 cents. Compare this small expense with the fees charged by specialists and then remember that if Hyomei does not cure Clarke & Co., will return your money.

Bourbon Racing Stables.

Where to race with a possible turf clash staring them in the face is a question that is now before the horse owners domiciled in this section. It is almost a certainty that all of them will enter and race their horses at Lexington and Louisville, as the American Jockey Club is looked upon with much favor. Turney Bros. say from the present outlook that they will go with the new Association. Clay Bros. will race at Lexington and Louisville and then go East. P. J. Millett, whose stable is now at Memphis, will do the same. Talbot Bros. and Woodford & Buckner are undecided. Several small stables from here will all go with the new association.

Telephone Connection.

The Portsmouth Telephone Company Wednesday closed a contract with the Kentucky Long Distance Telephone Company Independent, whereby they secure long distance connections with Maysville, Flemingsburg, Mt. Sterling, Paris, Cynthiana, Richmond, Frankfort, Lexington, Louisville and minor points in Indianapolis Ind., and St. Louis, Mo. This connection will be made at Portsmouth in about four months.

Don't Want Dates.

There will be no racing on the Lexington track this Spring under the auspices of the Western Jockey Club on the dates originally assigned, May 4 to 10. Secretary W. C. Scott, of the Kentucky Racing Association, has written the club relinquishing the dates given, and the association will accept its dates from the schedule to be made by the Corrigan organization.

The Diamond Cure.

The latest news from Paris, is, that they have discovered a diamond cure for consumption. If you fear consumption or pneumonia, it will, however, be best for you to take the great remedy mentioned by W. T. McGee, of Vanhook, Tenn. "I had a cough for fourteen years. Nothing helped me until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which gave instant relief, and effected a permanent cure." Unequaled quick cure for Throat and Lung Troubles. At Oberdorfer's drug store; price 50c and $1.00, guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

Bent Her Double.

"I knew no one for four weeks, when I was sick with typhoid and kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Annie Hunter, of Pittsburg, Pa., "and when I got better, although I had one of the best doctors I could get, I was bent double, and had to rest my hands on my knees when I walked. From this terrible affliction I was rescued by Electric Bitters, which restored my health and strength, and now I can walk as straight as ever. They are simply wonderful." Guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and kidney disorders; at Oberdorfer's drug store; price 50c.
